

Contents

INTRODUCTION 1

1. How does attachment come about? 2
2. The five aggregates 3

SUTTA REFERENCES 5

1. Five aggregates and memory of past lives 6
 - five aggregates and past lives 6
 - thus and thus in conditioning was i 6
2. Five aggregates defined 7
3. Five aggregates... why bother? 8
 - daily life of monks 8
 - five aggregates contemplation 9
 - the empty nature of body and mind 11
 - consciousness conjures up a magic show 12
 - relevance of five aggregates 14
4. Stabbed by two knives 15
 - body is a burden 15
 - stabbed by bodily and mental pain 18
 - freedom from mental pain is possible 19
5. The culprit 'I am' 20
 - 'i am' and its fading away 21
6. Endless faring on 21
 - spiritual maturity springs from recognizing dukkha 22
 - the master awaits one who is ready 23
7. The door to release 23
 - training in the true Dhamma as the first step 24

- 8. Empty, insubstantial, without essence 25
simile of the foam 25
simile of rain falling on water 26
simile of a mirage 27
simile of the banana tree 27
simile of a magic show 28
setting oneself free 29
- 9. This is not mine, this am I not, this is not myself 29
they are beyond my control, how could they be mine?! 30
not-self 32
body and mind have nothing to do with us 33
- 10. Swept away by the stream 34
but there is salvation 35
- 11. Accomplished in the Dhamma-Vinaya:
skilled in the seven points 36
body 38
feeling 40
reduce worldly contacts 42
- 12. Accomplished in the Dhamma-Vinaya:
investigator of the three ways 42
- 13. The greater discourse on the mass of suffering 43
body gratification 43 danger in the body 44
futility of attachment to the body 45
- 14. The way to the imperturbable 46
mara's bait 46
renunciation 47
- 15. Parable of the five murderers 47
deceived lifetime after lifetime 50

CONCLUSION 51